Best Fido Friends Monthly

February Edition

Valentines is near! Here are some safety tips to get you through this sweet holiday:

- Be very cautious of the items you leave out while you're away. As much as we all love to give and receive flowers, some can be very fatal to animals; Calla Lily, Carnation, Chrysanthemum, Daffodil, Dahlia, Freesia, Gladiola, Hyacinth, Hydrangea, Iris, Lily of the Valley, Ranunculus, Tulip, etc. Roses can cause punctures to the mouth and paws, and possible bowel obstruction if swallowed. To be safe always keep flowers out of reach from your pet.

- Chocolate and Cocoa is and will always be a major toxic to cats and dogs! Try your best to steer chocolate away from all your animals.

- Some candy and baked goods are made with a sweetener called xylitol, which is toxic to pets and can cause hypoglycemia!

- A lot of decorations like tape, ribbons, bows, balloons, and wrapping paper can become a choking hazard. Dispose of them properly before your pets find them! Keep an eye on them when around decorations that can become fatal for your pet.

- Cocktails are a major go to on holidays to make the party more inviting. But, Just a small amount can cause illness, comas, or even death. Keep cocktails away from your pets and wipe up any messes ASAP!

- Candles are common on Valentines Day, but also used daily to make your home smell nice. Always keep your candles out of reach from pets. If you have a curious kitten, this can be quite difficult to keep out of their reach. Try to section them away from the room you have candles lit in. Never leave candles or a fire unattended with pets.
